Scope and Content Note

This collection consists of the research, correspondence, drafts, proofs and reviews pertaining to the research and production of Ira Grushow's book The Imaginary Reminiscences of Sir Max Beerbohm. Mr. Grushow was careful to document every step of the scholarly research and publication process - from initial notes and drafts, to published reviews and royalties.

Strengths of the collection include a comprehensive overview of the publication process, duplicates of original Beerbohm manuscript materials from public and private collections throughout the United States, and extensive bibliographical source notes for dozens of Beerbohm caricatures.

In addition there is an extensive collection of 127 monograph titles relating to Max Beerbohm, including first English and American editions of his works. Works include novels, satires, caricatures, caricature exhibition catalogs, collections of correspondence and theater criticism by Beerbohm; as well as bibliographies, biographies, and critical analyses of Beerbohm's work.

Max Beerbohm (1872–1956) was a noted English essayist, caricaturist, and parodist. A charming, witty, and elegant man often called “the incomparable Max,” Beerbohm was a brilliant parodist and the master of a polished prose style. His works include A Christmas Garland (1912), a collection of parodies on such authors as Joseph Conrad and Thomas Hardy; Zuleika Dobson (1911), an amusing satire on Oxford; Seven Men (1919), stories; and And Even Now (1920) and Mainly on the Air (1947), essays. Beerbohm was accomplished at drawing, and he published several volumes of excellent caricatures, including The Poet's Corner (1904) and Rossetti and His Circle (1922). In 1933 Beerbohm was nominated for the Nobel Prize in Literature and in 1939 he was knighted by King George VI. From 1910 until his death in 1956, Beerbohm made Rapallo, Italy his primary residence.
