CRA (Catastrophic Relief Alliance)

Event Participation Policies

The mission of the CRA states that this is an organization which is involved in the planning of and participation in multiple-day relief opportunities to areas that have been affected by natural disasters or housing distress. Due to the nature of this organization it takes months of planning in order to organize these trips. The costs can also become substantial as travel to affected locations may require multiple modes of transportation and/or building supplies. The majority of funding comes from donations and fundraising efforts, as well as contributions from volunteer participants. Participation costs will be determined prior to each relief opportunity.

Participants are expected to abide by the following policies.

- Each participating member will be required to pay a commitment fee. The amount of this fee will be determined based on the total cost of the trip and the amount of money that is fundraised. Failure to raise necessary funds may result in higher participant fees, or cancellation of trip.
- The commitment fee, and any deposits should be paid by the designated date. The commitment fee is non-refundable (unless the trip is cancelled). Any deposits are refundable, as long as deposit requirements are met.
- If the participant cancels after the purchase of major transportation (ex. plane tickets), the individual will be responsible for paying for FULL individual participation costs, including ALL transportation, lodging and food.
- Students, faculty & staff affiliated with F&M will be required to pay the same fee.
- Any participants that take part in the trip that are not affiliated with F&M will be required to pay the full price of transportation and other costs unless specifically approved by the CRA officers otherwise.
- The CRA officers will be responsible for initial planning efforts but once the final group participants have paid their contribution to commit to the trip, EVERY member will be required to take an active role in fundraising efforts.
- All participating members will conduct themselves respectfully as representing members of the F&M college community.
- The CRA officers have the authority to change and/or modify these policies as necessary.

I have read & understand the policies, as they pertain to the following relief opportunity.
